

EDITORIAL

Any copy intended for publication in the Carmel Sun next week should be handed in not later than Monday noon. The earlier dead-line is set because with the next issue of the Sun the publication day will be changed from Thursday to Tuesday.

Many Carmelites have been interviewed on the advisability of the change and all have expressed approval of the idea and wondered why it had not been done before, since that will give Carmel a local newspaper in the fore part of the week as well as in the latter part and carry the week end news to the homes three days earlier than heretofore.

We also would call attention to The Sun's clubbing offer advertised in this paper on popular magazines. This is unusual when one considers the high class of the periodicals offered — all four for 75 cents in addition to the regular price of The Sun.

Boys and girls entering the Bicycle contest advertised on page six will receive orders for the magazine club along with subscriptions to the Sun. This applies to present as well as new subscribers.

NUMBER 50

Annual Meeting

The annual parish meeting and dinner of All Saints Episcopal Church was held at the parish house last Monday evening. After a delicious dinner prepared by the ladies of the church, the meeting was called to order by the Reverend Chinn.

Mrs. Rose, president of the parish guild, spoke of the reorganization, during the year, of the guild, and its expansion by the amalgamation of the various organizations into one guild, thus securing greater efficiency through concentration of effort. Mrs. Rose was especially gratified by the work done for foreign missions.

Vestrymen elected for 1935 were Messrs. Price, Wheldon, Maudsley, Cockburn, Anderson, and Darling. Delegates appointed to the annual convention were the Messrs. Cockburn, Wheldon, Darling, Anderson and Crossman. The following alternates were named: Messrs. Prince, Maudsley, Wheeler, H. M. Russell and Kingsland.

Delegates elected to attend the annual convention of the House of Church Women to be held the first Monday in February, 1935, were: Mrs. Rose, Mrs. Kennedy, Mrs. Chinn, Mrs. Mellis and Miss Dickinson. Alternates appointed were Mrs. Wheeler, Mrs. McIntyre, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Gillett and Mrs. Reamer.

COL. MACK LEAVES

FOR THE EAST

Harold L. Mack, editor and publisher of "Controversy," left Thursday for Washington, D. C., to attend a national conference on monetary problems. Mr. Mack has been largely responsible for the growing importance of the Social Credit organization in California and is attending the conference as a representative of this group. The conference was called by Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma, and several schools of economic thought will be represented.

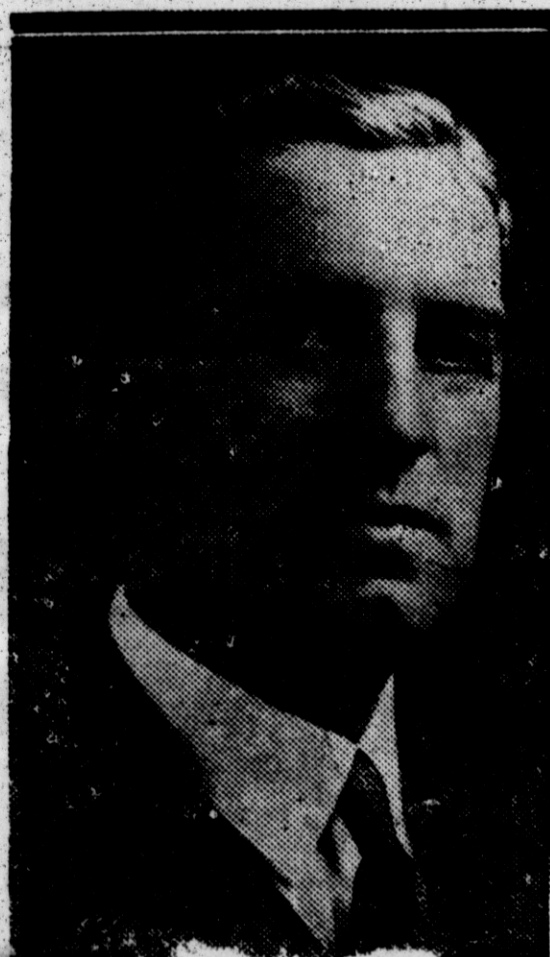

Mr. Mack recently moved the editorial and business offices of "Controversy" from Carmel to San Francisco and is publishing the magazine as a Social Credit journal.

Well Known Musician Called

Miss Minna Berger, resident of Carmel for the past few years, passed away Monday night. Formerly of Hanford, where she had long been identified with musical and cultural activities, she came to Carmel about eight years ago and established her home and piano studio. Interment was at El Carmelo cemetery.

Carmelites Cheer

Ill Police Chief

Desiring to send an expression of appreciation and sympathy to Police Chief Gus Englund, who is in a San Francisco hospital suffering from an infection of the foot, a group of representative citizens have written letters to which all Carmelites so wishing may affix their signatures. These letters are being held at Staniford's Drug Store and those wishing to sign them are urged to do so immediately, in order that they may be in the mail by Saturday.

MISS PRENTISS RETURNS FROM MEXICO

Miss Janet Prentiss, founder and owner of Carmel's widely known Cinderella Shop, has returned from a delightful three months in Mexico. Mexico City she found not quite so alluring as depicted on travel posters, — in fact a bit tawdry as to general appearance. She also visited Cuernavaca, the home of the late Ambassador Morrow.

The name of Janet Prentiss is an inseparable part of any chronicle of Carmel. Originally coming here solely for the purpose of writing, she found herself taking a real part in community life. She was for many years librarian and also founded the Woman's Exchange. The Cinderella Shop she founded and developed through her own industry and personality. It is known wherever Carmel is known.

NO NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN SHAFFNER CASE

Officer Charles Guth, acting chief of police during the illness of Chief Gus Englund, states that a patrol is still being maintained along the beach with the area of search shifted to the north and extending to Pacific Grove. Any theories other than the possibility of suicide have been abandoned by Dr. E. O. Heinrich, Berkeley criminalist, who was called into the case early in the search. A reward of $250 has been offered for the discovery of the body.

League of Women

Voters Plan Work

The Monterey Peninsula League of Women Voters is fast taking its place as one of the outstanding organizations on the Peninsula. Last Tuesday the group studying government and international cooperation met in Carmel at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Karl Rendtorff, on El Camino Real. An interesting talk by Mrs. Rendtorff on the psychology of the people under a dictatorship, their hopes and fears, was followed by a general discussion of the subject. This was the regular meeting of the study group.

NOTICE OF CHANGE In Publication Day of CARMEL SUN

Commencing January 15 the Carmel Sun will be mailed to its subscribers on Tuesday of each week, instead of on Friday.

We are making this change after a careful survey of the local field, in which we found that both the public and the business houses were in favor of it. At present every publication is sent out on Friday, thereby creating a duplication of both news and advertising. By coming out on Tuesday Carmel Sun enters an unoccupied field, will be able to present week-end news earlier and provide a medium by which business houses may develop trade for the early part of the week and thereby more evenly distribute their sales.

Please bear in mind the change and—

CABBAGES, KINGS AND GARLIC

(From the Christian Science Monitor.)

From Paris comes the report that a French professor has succeeded, after lengthy experimentation, in grafting garlic and cabbage plants. Just how the cabbage feels about it remains unchronicled.

Perhaps the modern mania for mergers has something to do with it. The origin of both vegetables is lost in antiquity and they have dwelt apart so long that the assumption is they preferred to lead separate existences. Consider a moment their diverse characters.

French encyclopaedias define garlic as "an onion of an odor very strong," a typically Gallic combination of truthfulness tempered with politeness. In ancient Rome the "strong" qualities of allium were so widely recognized that, on the eve of battle, soldiers' rations were liberally supplied with it to induce the desired degree of pugnacity.

The cabbage, on the other hand, belongs to the gentler legumes. Rightly prepared, it gives up even the slight odor it naturally has, which is something garlic stubbornly declines to do. A cabbage, of course, is no rose, but it is not entirely a stranger to romance. "Mon petit chou," is a familiar appellation of endearment in France.

To the less sentimental Briton the cabbage vies in favor with its smaller cousin, the Brussels sprout, as travelers have at times noticed—and remarked. Alice in Wonderland's walrus even linked it with royalty when the creature pointed out that it was time to talk of other things, among them cabbages and kings. The propriety of mingling it with garlic may still be questioned.

The Sun extends congratulations to the two Pacific Grove men who on Monday joined the Monterey county official staff. We refer to Anthony Brazil who was sworn in as district attorney, and Russell W. Giles, who became county treasurer. Brazil says that he will look to officials of the municipalities to attend to their own affairs, while he devotes his time to law enforcement in other parts of the county. He named Dan Bordin, of Salinas, as his deputy for that city; K. Y. Sapero, of Monterey, deputy for the Peninsula, and W. F. Gleason, of Carmel, special investigator.

Col. Clair Foster, nationally known amateur radio enthusiast, was the honored guest at the Tuesday meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Breakfast Club, held at Hotel San Carlos. The Elks furnished the program.

LOOKING AHEAD

What will the new year bring forth?

That question is uppermost in the minds of nearly everybody, —the business and professional man, the worker in every line, the unemployed.

Upon its answer depends our welfare and prosperity.

All signs at the present time point to a better year than 1931, 1932, 1933 or 1934,—perhaps as good a year as 1930, which as we look back upon it, was a fairly good year although the depression was then beginning to set in.

Industry is hopeful. Orders are increasing. More cars are being sold. Steel production is up. Business is preparing for a definite but undetermined increase.

Politicians are showing less hysteria and more common sense. Congress, which always has difficulty in looking past the next election, will continue to be unstable, but the administration at Washington shows signs of a desire to quit cracking down on business. Its force bills have not brought back prosperity, but have hampered its return, and the administration now thinks of abandoning force for encouragement and co-operation.

Popular sentiment is not as rabid against the social order as it was. We are beginning again to sense the fact that capitalism is not wholly evil,—that unless there is capital there can be no labor and where there is no labor there is nothing but distress.

There is a growing demand for more sanity in relief. Some say that if relief had not been scattered broadcast, falling alike to the just and to the unjust, revolution would have followed. Perhaps. But if relief continues upon the scale of last year, with its accompaniments of waste and politics, not only will the morale of the people be still further seriously undermined but bankruptcy of the nation will eventually result. Neither an individual nor a country can constantly spend more than it earns without coming to a bad end. Relief will continue, but perhaps in 1935 we shall be able to make it less wasteful, less demoralizing and more helpful to those who really need it.

Pauline Meeks and Rags (purr to you) have returned from a visit with Sheila Molony in Palo Alto and Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Walker in Atherton.

Miss Mary C. Crawford and her sister, Mrs. Dennis R. Dupuis, both of Santa Monica, who have been vacationing in Carmel for several weeks, have decided to extend their stay here for at least two months longer.

Carmel Valley Notes

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

In all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., a Lesson-Sermon will be read Sunday, January 13, on the subject "Sacrament."

The Golden Text will be: "A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one for another" (John 13: 34, 35). Bible selections will include the following passages from Matthew 5: 1, 2, 6, "And seeing the multitudes, he went up into a mountain: and when he was set, his disciples came unto him: And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying, . . . Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled."

A passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included, which reads as follows: "The habitual struggle to be always good is unceasing prayer. Its motives are made manifest in the blessings they bring,—blessings which, even if not acknowledged in audible words, attest our worthiness to be partakers of Love" (p. 4).

SUP. JACOBSEN MADE CHAIRMAN CO. BOARD

A. B. Jacobson of Pacific Grove, county supervisor representing the peninsula, was elected chairman of the board at the monthly meeting of that body in Monterey Monday. He succeeds Harvey Abbot of Salinas. Other board members are George Dudley, San Ardo; Paul Talbot, King City, and Mose Hutchings, Prunedale.

Are there any architectural designers in the state who could plan for Carmel an imposing court house?

The broadcasting studios are in need of intelligent stage managers.

The state of Ohio was noted for leading all states in bond responsibilities. California now takes first place.

A severe headache awaits Carmel, Pacific Grove and Monterey when the water company tells them what the price will be for their plant, and to say nothing about what the extra cost will be to replace those porous pipes.

Let's return thanks that the football season has about ended and we shall soon cease to hear these hysterical football broadcasts.

Since we have S. E. R. A. the cost of chisels has advanced.

By the way, who removed the trees on the south end of the east side of San Antonio street between Ninth and Tenth streets? Why was one lonely tree allowed to remain?

The City Council should cancel that court house bond election and save Carmel expense. That election won't mean anything if the water company applies to the courts for an injunction to stay the erection of buildings over the water pipes. Perhaps the water company is in fear the pipes won't stand the weight.

Ninth and Twelfth streets were paved—not in their entirety—and paid for by the property owners along those streets. The streets thus paved were accepted and are to be kept in repair by the city. Now, how is this work done on the unaccepted streets being paid for? If the city is doing charitable work on unaccepted streets it should return to those property owners the money that they were compelled to pay for their street improvements.

Mission street is paved from Ocean avenue to Tenth street with bituminized gravel and cement. It is beginning to wrinkle and break up, and it is only the matter of a short time that the street will be in need of extensive repairs. The contractor certainly gypped the city and "stung" the Mission street property owners.

The Rambler

It seems impossible to walk around Carmel without making interesting discoveries in personalities. Even the deluge of last Friday afternoon proved an aid to adventure.

The two small sunbeams and their mother decided that such a grand, blow-y day deserved a walk on the beach and set out to accomplish it. The heavens opened up, the streets were torrents of water and the trio were floundering through the water with clothes drenched and ardor dampened. A doorway opened and a welcome voice called them out of the storm into a cheery studio occupied by the hospitable rescuer and his charming wife who proved to be Mr. and Mrs. Heinrich Pfeiffer from far eastern points of these United States. In fact they belong to the largest summer art colony in the world, in Provincetown, Mass., at the tip of Cape Cod.

Provincetown is a picturesque fishing village and a place of delight in the summer time, but a bit too rugged and bleak in the winter even for artists, so the two set out on an exploring expedition looking for a winter location that would prove ideal. St. Augustine, Fla., was the best they could find on the east coast, but it still fell short of their dream location. They came to Los Angeles this winter and prowled around its reputedly artistic environs, but not until they came north to Carmel was the quest at an end. They had found the gem at the end of their rainbow and here they are established for several months on Ocean avenue, down toward the sea, with a hospitable sign of welcome in front of the door.

Heinrich Pfeiffer is an artist of renown, whom Carmel should be happy to welcome. He works in both oils and water color and is a modernist, but not in the radical sense. He has exhibited in all the best galleries here and abroad.

Carmel Under Spanish Rule

Notes from Laguna Vista Guest Book
By Robert E. Jones

The following notes were written by Robert E. Jones for the guest book of his Carmel home on the Point, Laguna Vista. When not in Carmel, Mr. Jones lives at 661 San Luis Road, in Berkeley. He is editor and owner of the Pacific Dairy Review and is prominently identified with dairy interests throughout the state. From Laguna Vista may be seen the valley, the hills, Mission San Carlos, the Santa Lucia Range, the river and the beach. It is an inspiring panorama, artistically and historically.

NOTES FROM THE LAGUNA VISTA GUEST BOOK

Robert E. Jones

The view from Laguna Vista encompasses an area rich in California history. Across the field to the left, at the fringe of the forest over the shoulder of the hill, may be seen the roof of Mission San Carlos Borromeo de Monterey, the second mission established by the Franciscan Fathers in Alta California. This was the headquarters mission of Father-President Junipero Serra, the founder.

The rich farming lands in view were the mission gardens, along the borders of Rio del Carmel, which forms a lagoon at its junction with the sea. This soil has been farmed by white men for a longer period than any other in Alta California, with the possible exception of a small area near Mission San Diego de Alcalá.

Across the bottom lands and the lagoon rise the Sierra de la Santa Lucia, named by the explorer Vizcaino on December 14, 1602. On the same day, the river you see before you, Rio del Carmel, was named in honor of the Carmelite friars on board. This was the first view Vizcaino and his crew had received of the coast in some days, as they had been enveloped in a thick fog. How lovely it must have looked to them! Vizcaino rounded Punta de los Pinos (which he named) and dropped anchor in Monterey Bay on December 16, 1602, giving the harbor the name of his patron (Conde de Monterey), and from that day on Rio del Carmel and Monterey have been famous.

But it was not until June 3, 1770, that the mission and presidio of San Carlos Borromeo were founded. A few days before the founding of the presidio and mission, H. H. Bancroft, in his "History of California," reports:

"As Portola, Crespi and Fages walked along the beach that afternoon, returning from a visit to the cross, they looked over the placid bay, ruffled only by the movements of seals and whales, and they said, all being of one accord: 'This is the port of Monterey which we seek, just as Vizcaino and Cabrera Bueno described it'—and so it was,—the only wonder being that they had not known it before. Soon, for lack of fresh water, camp was moved across to Carmelo Bay."

And it may be that some of that band camped on this exact spot!

The party remained at Carmel for a week, crossing to the shores of Monterey Bay when the supply ship, San Antonio, arrived.

Even in those days Carmel had an irresistible lure.

The formal establishment of the mission and the presidio followed on June 3rd. Ceremonies took place under a tree, on the spot where Vizcaino had taken formal possession of Monterey 170 years before.

However, the mission was removed to its present site, which lies before you, in December, 1771. Father Serra's reason for the change in location was lack of water and fertile soil at Monterey, but historians think it likely that he also desired to remove his band of neophytes from close contact with the soldiers at the presidio. Permission for the removal was dated November 12, 1770, and the present site was selected in July, 1771. By the end of the year, the new mission established on the banks of Rio del Carmel included a palisade square enclosing a wooden chapel, dwelling, storehouse and guardhouse, and corrals were being completed.

Here was the central government of all the missions of Alta California. Padre Juan Crespi, who recorded early explorations, died here in June of 1782. Parde Serra died here, August 28, 1784, and his capable successor, Padre Fermin Francisco Lasuen died here June 26, 1803. Their burial place is in the little church before you.

The second year after the removal of the mission to Carmel was a hard one. The supply ship failed to arrive and for weeks vegetables and milk were the sole foods, except what the Spaniards could obtain from the natives. Five fanegas of wheat were harvested at San Carlos in 1772. There was an abundance of salmon in Carmel river and the Indians came down from the valley and mountains each season during the "run" to get their supply.

The uncertainty of supply ships in coming led to the search for an overland route from Sonoma to the Alta California missions. This famous route was opened by the intrepid explorer Captain Juan Bautista de Anza, the names of whose followers are familiar to residents of the San Francisco Bay district—Montez, Moraga, Peralta, Estudillo, etc.

Crossing the mountains from the Colorado desert into San Gabriel Valley in southern California, Captain Anza and his party slept in the Pass of San Carlos the night of the famous Boston Tea Party, which antedated our Revolutionary War. Captain Anza visited Monterey on his first trip. On his second, when he came with a large party of settlers and 1000 head of cattle and mules, he visited Carmel. Bancroft says:

"Anza and Font went over to the Mission by invitation of the President, where the Commandant was confined to his bed for more than a week by a painful illness."

Carmel was the hospital of the famous explorer who deserves a monument for his contribution to the settlement of California.

Many other famous explorers of pre-American days sojourned at the Mission. By the year 1774 much wheat was grown and San Carlos was the leading mission, with 244 neophytes. Livestock included cattle, horses, mules, sheep, goats and swine. The most prosperous missions agriculturally at this time, were San Gabriel, San Carlos, San Antonio and San Luis Obispo. At one time there were nearly 1000 Indian neophytes attached to Carmel Mission; their villages on the lands before you.

One might go on and on giving facts about this historic land in view from the veranda of Laguna Vista. If the reader is interested further, he may find pleasure in reading the works of Bancroft, Bolton, William Heath Davis, and the diary of Rev. Walter Colton,—"Land of Gold,"—written during his three years as alcalde of Monterey, after the American occupation in 1846.

Of Carmel Mission and the soil at that time (1846), Colton wrote: "This mission, founded in 1770, stands in the Carmel Valley, three miles from Monterey. Through its ample lands flows a beautiful stream of water which every governor of the country, for the last thirty years, has proposed conducting to the metropolis (Monterey). Its waters are extremely rich in flavor, and in its soil were raised, in 1826, the first potatoes cultivated in California. So little did the presiding padre think of this strange vegetable he allowed the Indians to raise and sell them to the whalers that visited Monterey without distributing their profits. He was satisfied if the Indians would give him one salmon in ten out of the hundreds they speared in the stream which swept past his door. This mission in 1825, branded 2300 calves; had 87,600 head of cattle, 1800 horses and mares, 365 yoke of oxen, nine sheep farms with an average of about 6000 sheep on each; a large assortment of merchandise and $40,000 in specie which was buried on the report of a piratical cruiser on the coast. It was secularized in 1835. The church remains; but the only being I found in it was a large white owl, who seemed to mourn its fall."

Oh, the glory that is gone!

We are the heirs of those Spanish pioneers who began the settlement of California on the lands that are the front yard of Laguna Vista. As the sun sets into the sea and the mist begins to rise on the lagoon, one may live over in fancy those early days. The margin of the river is alive with primitive men and women at the salmon catch, — neophytes cultivating the white man's crops, tending the cattle,—and the monotonous bleating of sheep is carried on the breeze. The fathers in their robes go about among their flock—practical, holy men who knew crops and livestock and the souls of men as well. This was a populous rich land. And the rich bottom soil of the Rio del Carmel still yields abundantly of beans and artichokes and dairy cattle feeds. Some of the old trees are still bearing the sweet pears of which Colton wrote.

1/2 OFF on EXTRA ELECTRICITY

"WHY I LEFT THE PORCH LIGHT ON ALL NIGHT."

And my, how this lady worried about it. But it wasn't worth worrying about because with 1/2 Off on Extra Electricity, a 60 watt lamp will burn 24 hours for 1¢.

"YOU KNOW I DID A LOT OF WASHING LAST MONTH."

Now this lady took us at our word—that 1/2 Off on EXTRA Electricity was cheap electricity. She ran her electric washer 12 EXTRA hours in December and although she couldn't notice it, her bill was only seven cents higher for all that extra service from her electric washer.

"JACK SAT UP TO ALL HOURS STUDYING."

Then, too, Jack had one of the new Better Sight study lamps with a 200 watt globe. His studying was made easier and he got better grades in all his subjects. It was certainly worth that penny a night for better sight with 1/2 Off on Extra Electricity.

"THE HOUSE WAS A MESS AFTER CHRISTMAS."

What house isn't quite messy after the tree is taken down! Then out comes the vacuum cleaner to get rugs and furniture, walls and drapes, all spick and span again. An extra thorough job can be done this January with the low cost 1/2 Off EXTRA Electricity. 22 hours of electric cleaning for 10¢.

"I THOUGHT AN ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR COST MORE THAN THAT TO OPERATE."

Public Opinion

The Carmel Sun invites its readers to make free use of this department in expressing their views on any subject of public interest.

HIGH COST OF LIQUOR

Editor Carmel Sun:

President Cardenas of Mexico, I observe, has undertaken to reduce drinking by imposing a tax on liquors so high that the working class cannot afford to buy. The experience of the United States government should have taught him the folly of such reasoning. High prices do not prevent drinking; but they do have the effect of bringing out an inferior quality of liquor, poisonous concoctions that wreck human lives. High prices for liquor also stimulate bootlegging with its resultant evils.

Why do men clothed with governmental responsibilities cling to policies long since proven fallacious? If alcoholic liquors were placed in the same class as all other products in the matter of taxation, with no special taxes, and the sale of them permitted in any grocery store the same as vinegar and molasses, the incentive to adulterate would be removed and intoxication would not be so prevalent as under the present policy of excessive taxation.

A CONNOISSEUR.

DANGEROUS BUT IMPASSABLE (ALMOST).

Editor Sun:

For the thrill of breaking an axle, or some such, drive on Dolores to where she makes her curtsy a few blocks north of Ocean, sustain the speed of one, two or three m.p.h. and the deed is done.

If you do not need such diversion as you pass the point you had better come to a dead stop and just trickle over the drainage canal eroded across the road way by the recent rains.

Yes, gentle reader, you know of other places in Carmel providing the same kind of sport; they are all around us.

A VICTIM

DELINQUENCIES IN CARMEL ARE FEWER

Times are getting better in Carmel according to Deputy Tax Collector Thomas J. Hefling, who reports that delinquencies for the current tax-paying period are only 9.17 per cent of the total taxes due, as compared with 16.13 per cent delinquent last year.

The total expected was $37,069.52, representing the real estate tax, exclusive of street and sewer payments, with $33,666.76 paid in, leaving a balance of only $3,400.76. In 1933 the expected sum was $38,286.86, and the amount received was $32,107.39, a gap of $6,179.47. A similar trend was noted in the Monterey and Pacific Grove figures.

Any boy or girl can easily earn a fine new bicycle. Read the proposition of The Sun on page 6.

MY PUP

He's only a little baby dog,
Encased in snowy white,
With eyes of snappy brightness,
That sparkle with delight.

"He cocks his head, as if to say,
"Let's frolic round the place,
And jump, and play, and chase
the ball,
And have a running race."

And round he goes on mischief bent,
There's nothing he won't try,
He bites and tears at everything,
And naught escapes his eye.

When tired are the little legs,
And bright eyes want to close,
He suggles down in some soft place,
To sound and sweet repose.

He knows no trouble, fears or woe,
Except when master speaks,
In cross or angry reprimand,
For some annoying freaks.

And in his heart, no memory dwells,
Of anger, blows or pains,
But only deep affection, is all
That there remains.

How many mortals do we find,
That have, like this dumb friend,
Such loyal, deep affection,
That lasts until the end.

—F. O. Robbins, Carmel, Calif.

Two Rules.

"My Boy," said the magnate to his son, "there are two things which are vitally necessary if you are to succeed in business."

"What are they, dad?"

"Honesty and sagacity."

"What is honesty?"

"Always — no matter what happens or how adversely it may affect you — always keep your word once you have given it."

"And sagacity?"

"Never give it." — Unidentified.

Investment

"I see Smith has an automobile."

"Yes; his rich uncle gave it to him."

"Why, he told me he put all the money he had into it."

"So he did. He bought four gallons of gasoline." — Grit.

Game warden: "Yes ma'am."

REVIVAL OF COUNTY

FAIR IN PROSPECT

The revival of the Monterey County Fair is sought in a resolution brought before the board of supervisors Monday. The proposal is to make available an appropriation of $40,000 of state funds. The resolution was introduced on the suggestion of A. B. Jacobsen of Pacific Grove, newly elected chairman of the board. Jacobsen's idea is to hold the fair at the Del Monte polo field in September.

Birthday Party.

Emma Ann Wishart entertained some of her classmates and other young friends at a party last Saturday in celebration of her eleventh birthday anniversary.

After the girls had taken keen delight in watching the antics of Joe E. Brown as he pedaled his persistent path through the six day bike race, Emma Ann took her guests home to enjoy cake, ice cream, etc. This popular event was followed by musical chairs and other games after which the guests departed.

Among those present were: Joyce Thompson, Lillian Ohm, Helen Wetzel, Monie Wishart, Adaline Guth, Ellen Pearl McGrury, Vivian Ohm, Mary Reade, Eleanor Hart, Gloria De Gaston and Yvonne Mercurio. All agreed that the party had been a mighty good one and looked forward to many happy returns of the day.

THE SUNSPOTTER

DISCOVERIES and DISCLOSURES. You don't know what you may have missed about town in the way of TREASURES and BARGAINS. . . The SUN SPOTTER seeks and finds good buys for the customer and good buyers for the Merchant. Find YOUR PLACE in the SUN and let the SUN SPOTTER help you keep it!

Will the lady who wrote in for an interview as to the wisdom of acquiring a new city hall at this time, he replied that it was all the same to him. "But spare the forest," said he, "and see that there is a kennel with a southern exposure where I can get the Carmel Sun, and one of those much-heralded pork barrels for my daily chop and I'll have no bones to pick with any of them."

Speaking of REDUCING . . . Mrs. Carol Edwards is still carrying on a drastic program at The LITTLE SHOP. . . Even if you're in reduced circumstances after too much Christmas, you can't resist the amazing bargains to be found there. . . Today a visitor exclaimed in amazement of the low price of some rag rugs, just like one she had ordered from Portland, Me., at more than twice the price. When she found that the hand-braided, hand-sewed rugs at the LITTLE SHOP came from the same town in New England, she immediately acquired some, and will talk about her remarkable bargain for many a moon. . . There are still a few left, and they go so well with the sandy complexion of Carmel floors. . . Better take a look. . . My bet is that you won't leave without a purchase of some sort, whether it be a bit of lovely glass, a hand-woven bag or scarf, or—something.

JANE'S CAKE SHOP! The ENGLISH KITCHENETTE! Doesn't that sound intriguing? And it's even better than it sounds. I dropped in there for a spot of tea the other afternoon and remained to marvel. You can't think of tea time without thinking English. There's simply no one who can touch them when it comes to making all the delicious morsels and cakes that go with a cup of tea. . . Sarah Jane Etter is English and, gastronomically speaking, the queen of them all. . . Her cakes and cookies are unsurpassable and she makes all sorts of interesting English tidbits, such as sausage rolls, that are unfamiliar to most of us. . . Jane's Cake Shop uses only the finest of ingredients and the taste tells. . . If you need a special birthday cake, you can get that too . . . and if you feel lazy when you look at that cookstove, slip down and get a chicken or meat pie at Jane's Cake Shop and win the undying gratitude of the family. . . Jane's Cake Shop on Seventh street between San Carlos and Dolores.

Did you ever try orange marmalade . . . English style? If you haven't you're in for a treat. . . You'll find it at Jane's Cake Shop, on Seventh street, between San Carlos and Dolores.

Wherever you may roam, be it in city or town, you won't find a market anywhere that can excel the Leidig Market, presided over by the gracious and attractive owner, Mrs. Florence Leidig. The vegetables are of the freshest, the lines of the best, and the service is excellent. Don't let an after-Christmas leanness of pocket-book keep you from enjoying the luxury of avocados. I noticed a real special on them not-ed elsewhere in this paper.

Pauline Meeks is hunting for a good name for her wooly pup. It's a good dawg and deserves a fitting monicker. . . We asked the big old tan canine, known variously as Pal, alias Ugly, alias the Town Bum, but he says he is too concerned about the city hall question to take time to think up names for upstart mutts. He was sitting on Ocean and Mission when we found him, gazing meditatively toward Devendorf Plaza. Asked

Noted Artists in Glory Lane Cast

The initial Myerick production "Glory Lane," with a cast of twenty people is scheduled for presentation January 24, 25 and 26, at the Carmel Playhouse. John Patrick, who has written, produced and appeared in thousands of sketches over the air lanes of the National Broadcasting Company's networks, is the author of this original play. The story is one of human interest, timely and modern and as the title suggests, tells of an actress who found and trod the paths of glory.

Director Ralph Bell, who was imported from Hollywood to stage the production, is the director of such well known stage successes as "Excess Baggage," "Broadway," "Tell Me Again," "Tarnish," "The Mission Play" and "Triumphant Bachelor." The stars whom he has directed include such well known names as Edmund Lowe, Aileen Pringle, Joseph Schickel, Virginia Valli, Robert Woolsey, Glenda Farrell, Guy Kibbee, Edward Everett Horton and a score of others.

Sibyl Leonard plays the title role in this new production and is ideally cast. To quote the words of her director, "She is a natural! She could be in Hollywood or on Broadway. And what a study. She not only knows her own part but the entire manuscript from cover to cover."

Byington Ford and Gordon Knowles enact the roles of the two men who play an important part in her life. Both are known to peninsula theatre goers for their outstanding work in past productions. Others in the cast include, Elizabeth Curran, Hallie Samson, Ivy Van Cott, Nancy Thompson, Marion Ford, Fern Hyde, Zahrah er whose "Redwoods" was recently presented to the Egyptian government at a banquet given by the Sequoia Club in San Francisco. The canvas is about forty by thirty inches and was on exhibition at Santa Cruz for some time.
